Internal Reference Sheet

OptiMind Educational Strategies — prepared by Ruby Groves, Gemini Lane

Applies to · Sarah only — not for the specialist Status · Draft Last updated · Aug 16, 2026

Not for employee distribution. This version carries financial tools, external contacts, and business-development details the specialist doesn't need day to day. The Employee Reference Sheet is the trimmed version that gets handed over during onboarding.

Overview

A day-to-day quick reference — where to find forms, which tools are in use today, who to contact, and what to know about data handling.

Current Tools

The practice-management platform decision (Sprint 03) hasn't landed yet — this is what's actually in use right now.

NEED	TOOL
Scheduling	Calendly, Zoom
Client agreements	PandaDoc
Billing / bookkeeping	QuickBooks, plus a separate billing spreadsheet
Leads	A separate leads spreadsheet
Legacy intake forms	JotForms
Session notetaking	TBD — tool not yet selected (Sprint 02)
Client file storage	TBD — currently cloud storage; no independent, tested backup exists yet
Company email / calendar	TBD

File Structure

TBD — draft proposal, not decided — a standard folder structure for the whole business: client files, client onboarding/contracts, admin/business files, and employee documents (both candidates and signed staff). This is a starting sample to react to, not a final structure — where it actually lives (Google Drive, the eventual practice-management platform, etc.) is still open per the Client File Storage question above.

TBD — see the Open Questions below; this needs Sarah's read on what's missing or organized differently before it becomes the real structure.

Operational & SOP Question Process

When the specialist runs into an operational or "how do I handle this" question that isn't clearly answered in the Employee Handbook or the other SOP documents, they email you directly with the question and CC Ruby Groves (ruby.groves@gemini-lane.com).

- You answer the specialist directly, same as any other question — this doesn't change how you'd normally respond.
- The CC lets Ruby track it as a documentation gap — a question that came up because nothing written down covered it — so it can get folded into the actual SOP rather than staying a one-off answer.
- This CC step is only useful for the duration of the Gemini Lane engagement (through Jan 26, 2027) — after that, gaps would need a different tracking method.

TBD — worth deciding now what replaces it once the engagement ends.

Cancellation & No-Show Tracking

Early cancellations, late cancellations, and reschedules are logged as separate, distinct outcomes — not lumped into one "cancelled" bucket. See the No-Show & Cancellation Policy for the full protocol and billing terms.

Open Questions for Sarah

1. What's the protocol if a client discloses a self-harm or safety concern during a session? (see above — highest priority)
2. Does the proposed file structure above match how you actually think about organizing the business, or is anything else missing/organized differently?

3. Where should the folder structure actually live — Google Drive, or wait for the Sprint 03 platform decision?
4. What's the retention/archiving rule for graduated or inactive clients — a time-based move to _Graduated & Inactive (e.g. after 6–12 months with no session), or something else?
5. What replaces the email-Sarah-CC-Ruby process for surfacing SOP gaps once the Gemini Lane engagement ends on Jan 26, 2027?
6. Which session-notetaking tool ends up chosen, so this sheet can point to the real one instead of TBD?
7. Who are the key external contacts (bookkeeper, CPA, insurance broker) the specialist might need to know about?
8. What's the company email/calendar setup for the new hire?
9. Is there any current backup process for client data the specialist should know about, given the independent-backup item on the roadmap hasn't shipped yet?
