

DRAFT — FOR SARAH'S REVIEW

New Hire Decision List

OptiMind Educational Strategies — prepared by Ruby Groves, Gemini Lane

Applies to · New EF Specialist hire Status · Draft Last updated · Aug 16, 2026

A starting proposal for what the specialist decides alone, what needs a quick conversation with Sarah first, and what always stays with Sarah — so nothing gets decided by default or by guesswork. Review and edit each row; nothing here is final until you've confirmed it.

Decides Alone

- Which curriculum module to deliver next, within the client's existing coverage plan.
- Routine scheduling logistics with a client or parent (confirming a session time within the agreed cadence).
- Day-to-day session note and tracker entries.
- Minor adjustments to a session's activities based on how the client is doing that day.

Needs a Conversation

- Any change to a client's stated goals or overall plan.
- A client or parent asking to pause, reduce, or increase session frequency.
- A scheduling conflict that requires rebalancing the specialist's caseload.
- Anything that comes back from provider coordination (school or therapist) that raises a new concern.
- A parent missing multiple required sessions in a row.

Always Sarah's

- New client intake, pricing, and contract terms.
- Referral relationship management.
- Billing, invoicing, and any contract changes.

- Graduation and discharge sign-off.
- Any HR or employment matter.

Flagged for immediate attention: any disclosure of a self-harm or safety concern from a client. Until a formal protocol exists (see the open question on the Employee Reference Sheet), this needs to route straight to Sarah — but confirm below whether the specialist should have standing authority to act immediately in a true emergency (e.g., call 911) without waiting.

Open Questions for Sarah

1. Does the specialist have authority to reschedule or cancel a session unilaterally, or does that always need your sign-off?
2. At what point does a client's request to pause or reduce sessions need your involvement, versus being handled directly?
3. Is there a spending threshold above which purchasing decisions (materials, tools) need your approval?
4. Should the specialist have standing authority to act immediately in a true safety emergency, without waiting for you?
5. Anything on this list you'd move between tiers?
